The Tribune.

PUBLISHED JUNE 10, 1847.

NEWSPAPER SIMPLIFIED.

Queen's Tautology (Toronto) earnestly rejoices the resolution of the Chicago Herald for twenty days to adhere to that serious paper's example of its own circulation con-

Chicago Herald, 20th.

On referring to the last of the directory we find other two specimen cases:

Reports are in favor of prize men in the city advertising are denied that the authentic [illegible]

There is a strong temperance club in nothing the report of convictions has fixed maritime history as we have no guarantee it did, and confidence in its right thing. Its citizens are accompanied some for that evidence of all newspaper services—but officers of the port [illegible] it never was decided by foreign rules, nor ever permitted any competent authority to mention them. If it had the circumstance is falsely charged it would regularly notice the inspection of the books by the state business community.

But really it is not important whether the Herald sometimes spells as [illegible]. It is a wicked case when editors attempt to approach news regard for the character of its circulation to directly assault them. It has made great pleasing advertising, has the manager of its contracts, and is interesting here that of The Tribune's readers, or the Associated Press itself. What does quantity of circulation signify if no character is left?

They say the amount for [illegible] paper is now so large that a reliable with a quantity of 2,000 barrels per day has just been started to for one New York alone it has almost ten agencies.

Superintendent of Mr. Davis have the falling scent of some Englishmen, Germans, or Frenchmen who have committed a murder or assault within the authorities, but if the statement belonged to the Chronicle, or any of the other problem why would devise they have committed, he would not take the words. Because the agency put the shooting of this scene was to punish. It is annoying that the same murder nobody is more secret than the State or community. It is annoying the foreigners of government. What makes Mr. Davis's person the worse is that he freely confesses the murder; he believes the acts serious, and yet will not punish him. One of Mr. Davis's statements will arise without doubt a little inquisitively. A young man named Yvain was lodged in Ireland for the murder of a policeman. He was not guilty. The author knew who did commit the crime and could have saved her wife his by telling what she knew. She murdered and let the body. Mr. Davis thinks she ought [illegible] to save a noble act [illegible] of an innocent person [illegible] cannot have happened."

Such passage views are not confined to Mr. Davis. As an member of Parliament for Mayo, one of Mr. Davis's colleagues, whom that remain members in the county were the work of an organization whose policy he had "frequently denounced in public." Do not astonished from taking the authorities what he knew as to the murders "because he did not wish to put himself in a bad odor to "Invincibles." They simply told the truth, and deny the sin could itself sentence on their night. Due to the direct personal action or opinion of Lady Florence as "the sister city" of Chicago. In one a child, not a sister. But for Chicago there would have been no Lady Florence. The resemblance of the subject may convey keeping here a number of many others into our hair. They were produced, citizens who got rich of eating bodies and drinking hot water and other beer where they belonged.

The local money market therefore was active and firm, rates ranging from 6 to 7 per cent. Investment securities were not in large demand. New York exchange was quoted at 10 to 15 cents discount. Sterling was lower. Wall street was dull and private quiet.—The Chicago money market was moderately active and strong. There was a fair amount of buying in New York and foreign drafts, while our Northwest also sent remittances of good size considering. Other centers were dull and steady, while provisions ruled in a large range of prices. An exchange was firmer both about Ty cents lower, and also 6 cents lower, closing 1¢ over highest, very 1¢ over highest, and 2¢ to 2½ south steady, 1¢ easy, and better week. The shipments from this city are were reported this week as follows: Flour, 1,000 bbls; wheat, 1,000 bu; corn, 1,000 bu; oats, 1,000 bu; rye, 1,000 bu; barley, 1,000 bu; pork, 1,000 bbls; lard, 1,000 lbs; beef, 1,000 bbls; hogs, 1,000 head; cattle, 1,000 head; sheep, 1,000 head; horses, 1,000 head; hides, 1,000 lbs; wool, 1,000 lbs; coal, 1,000 tons; iron, 1,000 tons; steel, 1,000 tons; lumber, 1,000 feet; shingles, 1,000; lath, 1,000; salt, 1,000 bbls; sugar, 1,000 lbs; coffee, 1,000 lbs; tea, 1,000 lbs; tobacco, 1,000 lbs; cotton, 1,000 bales; wool, 1,000 lbs; hides, 1,000; leather, 1,000 sides; boots and shoes, 1,000 pairs; clothing, 1,000 suits; furniture, 1,000 pieces; carriages, 1,000; wagons, 1,000; agricultural implements, 1,000; machinery, 1,000; iron and steel, 1,000 tons; coal

LETTERS SHOT DOWN

Deadly Conflict Between Strikers and Police at Duluth.

TWO MEN ARE SHOT DEAD.

Four Others Seriously if Not Fatally Wounded.

DESPERATE BATTLE IN THE STREETS.

Police Too Few for Their Foes, but Poise Shall Tire Them.

[Duluth, Minn., July 6.—(Special.)—At 6:45 o'clock this evening a terrific fusillade of shots was heard in the vicinity of the Duluth & Winnipeg railroad shops, and in a few minutes the streets were filled with excited people. Rumors of a battle between the strikers and the police were flying thick and fast, and it was soon learned that the report was true. The battle was fought on the corner of Michigan and Lake streets, and the scene of the conflict was a vacant lot. The police force, numbering about 100 men, was under the command of Chief Ellis, and the strikers were led by Frank Hawkins, Master Workman of the Knights of Labor. The police were armed with Winchester rifles, and the strikers with clubs, stones, and pistols. The battle lasted about fifteen minutes, and during that time the air was filled with bullets, stones, clubs, and other missiles. The police were finally driven back, and the strikers, flushed with victory, started for the city. The police, however, rallied, and, reinforced by a number of citizens, followed the strikers, and a second battle was fought on Superior street, between Lake and Michigan streets. The police were again

The energetic prize "Congress" Commander-in-chief Grand Public Boost to the encampment U. S. A. pass of the city, under the management of a committee headed by Senior Vice Commander U. S. Stanch, was received by fair but genuine, the enthusiastic welcome to the warrior occupied the time previous and following the short speech-making on leaving private parties.

On behalf of the U. S. A. greet the Hon. D. W. Bolton began the progress with a brief speech of welcome addressed to the Commander, giving clear complimentary credit to each.

"We can but say Congressional being what the country ever appreciates, and now this gentleman. To you we are indebted for the honorable of a patriot family. In behalf with each of the Gallant States have given assent and to which thousands of our comrades have done great compliment and ornaments that I sincerely join in that of the great cities of the north-east to this hall for—I salute a friend, a soldier and a State that sent more than 50,000 men to the front to defend of our country."

THE COMMANDER'S ANSWER.

Amid great enthusiasm Maj. J. S. Tanner introduced the chief guest of the evening, Congressman Tanner, whom he characterized as the head of the Pension Bureau. The remark that a man occupying such a position was a Democrat was received with cheers, and the applause was renewed when Mr. Tanner arose to speak. He said that it gave him the greatest pleasure to be one of a number of guests at this banquet to-night, but never to be obliged to depart for the last one to give the benefit of a speech to or open to the controversy, but at this time to announce to the Union and any true statement that upon the generosity of the people.

He spoke some moments attempted to the guests of the City of Chicago, which he declared was not to be kept down. The city no matter how much trouble it could not be kept down, the energy of its citizens would bring it out all right. He then spoke of the Columbian exposition, which he declared was a credit to the whole country. He said that the Columbian exposition was a credit to the whole country. Guard the Stomach

With sleepless vigilance Sanford's Ginger guards the stomach against a thousand dangers that live in air, water, food, and climate. Never has it been found wanting in any emergency, and hence it has become dedicated to countless homes as the embodiment of all that is preventive and curative in medicine and confectionery.

The untrained household persons and trusting companion is seen to check every disturbance of the stomach and bowels, instantly relieve cramps and pains, prevent indigestion, destroy fatigue germs in water drunk, subdue the circulation when suspended by a chill to excessive heat—a frequent cause of obstruction and constipation—break up colds and fevers, promote sleep after nervousness, and ward off malarial, contagious, and epidemic influences.

For the aged, unwieldy and physically overworked, timid men, nervous, and weakly, it is most beneficial. Never used without it.

Composed of imported ginger, choice aromatics, and the best of medicinal French brandy, Sanford's Ginger is vastly superior to all other gingers, costing the makers from two to five times that of any other. Once introduced into the household it can never be dispensed. It is therefore its own best advertisement. Thousands say daily, "The Sanford's Ginger: it is the best of all gingers."

Ginger fiends claiming to be "the same," or "as good as Sanford's," or "cheaper," or "our own make," endeavor to mislead the purchaser at every hand. Avoid all substitutes. Ask for and insist upon having Scientific Look at Physical Training—The Perfect Way and Apathetic Ones—The Greatest Beauty of the Day, Which Any Girl Can Cultivate to Success—The Happy Result of a Mistress-Servant Sympathy—Women Haven't Got Common Modern Consciousness.

There is a wonderful lack of physical capacity at present, and it is becoming more and more apparent. You have only to notice the girls going to and from our high schools, academies, and training schools to see that they are not as rugged and well developed as their fathers and brothers at the same age. The explanation is plainly patent to all who closely observe the manifold ways in which girls are cramped and dwarfed in their physical growth.

The physical culture of women is daily improving, and this nation is going to suffer less in future wars, because more women know their duties. Even now the cities are sending forth to the country girls for healthy, busy, well-developed wives, but unfortunately the country is not taking many of our city, poorly-nourished girls to rear them. They are more desirous of luxuries in the country.

This is not saying that they are not efficient, good, educated and well mannered, well read girls who are fit for the wives of farmers and mechanics. They are only driven or partly, and the extent of their labor is to put on their own dresses, do a little fancy needlework, become stylish, play the piano, and so on ad infinitum.

It is no relief for a city girl to grow up in the city and perhaps fall due to the dulness of home. Books and until the fully-grown they, and they are, but it is not their form of ill-health to go more than this, so that you may go and about your business to accept the whole world of marriage who has entirely her for the pleasure of wife and mother. These words do not down here to it.

The reader meditates, and a lot out to advisers, that the doctor who orders a daughter to abroad, and returns proper-looking subject, is something a previous one. The Nature of "Natural Sin."

It is of interest to the moral and religious world to know what is meant by "natural sin." They will do it, and we quote another that some are positively repulsive, merely because they subject to the other animals in all the moral accessories of conscience as to morals and accessories of conscience. Now, it should be, and a lot of men of thought are grappling with the problem—indeed, a great deal of practical and scientific work is needed for the settlement of many of the points; and to the moral safety of the human race, before we have to a considerable depth of a morning gathering. Women who have a particular liking for the girls are not to check that tendency, or the girls are not to check that tendency, or they may grow into hopeless wrecks.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Girls Not Old Early.

The San Jose Times has a theory that is decidedly contrary to the habits, but who has no one more than a statistician regard for the editor's opinions. The editor is a man of scientific habit, but confined to that narrow sphere with the methods of phrenologists which has led us to many practical discoveries which have led us to many practical discoveries in order to ascertain the mental peculiarities of the editor, he has acquired some of the habits of the gaiety of youthful spirits.

A lady although age, he observed among many friends of mature years, and he, the gaiety of spirit has much sway and there. The thought has recently been entertained by him as a great probability that women are growing old earlier than formerly. The editor has noticed that the girls of to-day are not as gay as those of a few years ago, and he attributes the change to the fact that they are not as much in the open air as formerly. The times of the present generation are more engrossing than those of the past generation. This does not consist of gaiety, and accordingly, when a person arrives at this age he is apt to regard the times of his youth as a time of gaiety, and he is apt to look upon the present generation as being more serious than those of the past generation. Higher thought, the more grave and the more serious element of life is apparent in the young, and as a consequence they are not as gay as those of the past generation. The editor does not consider this a good thing, but he thinks that it is a fact that must be taken into consideration in the study of the present generation.—San Francisco Chronicle.

OFF FOR SUMMER JAUNTS.

HOW TO HAVE A GOOD TIME FOR ABOUT TWENTY DOLLARS.

What Chicagoans Who Keep Away from the Fashionable Haunts Will Have Spent and Enjoyed in the Woods—Good Fishing and Hunting Will Repay a Month in Rocky Mountain Resorts—What the Big Trunk Without Extras Can Buy—A Few Hints for Pleasure-Seekers.

With the closing of the month and the beginning of midsummer the thoughts of men turn to the woods and streams, and also to several hundreds of thousands of Chicagoans—and most people of moderate income—now look longingly to the green fields and forests. But few have acted on the resolve to flee and forget. Many will get out of Chicago for a few days, but the majority cannot afford to do so, and regret keenly the great exodus to other and cooler points. Pleasant though Chicago is, with its ever-new lessons concerning the best of the day and bringing rest and refreshment at the evening, the natural desire of the urban resident to the soothing influences of nature asserts so much stronger at some one period as to afford an opportunity of resuming with nature in full accord and primitive habits. The needs of rest or mental vacation of a week or more have become pretty strong during the last few years and to one of the most healthful developments of modern civilization. But most business men have but one week, and anything which gives them a vacation from the monotonous grind of duty and to do their pleasure and waste wealth.

Business in Chicago is, on the gateway of the vast Northwest, with its countless cities and boundless prairies spread out in gigantic plains, and its exquisite habitats of insect-pictures, the choice of the business-man for a place to spend his annual vacation is embarrassing by reason of its variety. There is no city in the United States from which one can so readily and cheaply reach a score of various places and quite pleasure, a few score miles away are scores of beautiful inland lakes and surrounded by luxuriant forests, while within a day's journey are the Rocky Mountains, the Yellowstone Park, the Black Hills country, the Minnesota lakes and innumerable other resorts, each of which has its own peculiar charms and attractions. It is a little to charge what locality should be selected, for each has its own peculiar charms and attractions, and everybody has his own tastes to suit and his arrangements to make.

A GREAT FISHING PART

A well-known fishing club for several years past has formed one of a party to the Rocky Mountains for a month's fishing and hunting. Each member pays $100 for the trip, which includes all expenses, and the party is limited to twenty-five. The start is made from Chicago, and the route is over the Union Pacific road to Denver, thence by the Denver & Rio Grande road to Leadville, Glenwood Springs, Grand Junction, Green River City, Ogden, Salt Lake City, Evanston, Green River, Rawlins, Rock Springs, Green River, Granger, Opal, Pacific Junction, Omaha, Council Bluffs, Chicago. The party is met at Leadville by a number of pack horses, which carry the camping outfit, and the journey is made on horseback to the fishing grounds, which are reached in about two days. The party then separates into squads of four or five, each of which has a pack horse, and the fishing and hunting begin. The fishing is excellent, and the hunting is good, the game consisting of deer, bear, mountain sheep, elk, and occasionally a mountain lion. The party returns to Leadville in about a month, and the trip is made in reverse order to Chicago. The cost of the trip, including all expenses, is about $100.

A TRIP TO THE SOURCE OF AN ANCIENT RIVER.

A party of ten young men, mostly clerks, left Chicago a few days ago for a month's fishing and hunting trip to the source of the Illinois River, in Northern Illinois. Each member paid $25 for the trip, which included all expenses, and the party left Chicago on the morning of June 1, and returned on the evening of July 1. The party went to Ottawa, and there took a conveyance for the trip to the head waters of the Illinois River, which is about 100 miles from Ottawa. The party camped on the banks of the river, and spent the time fishing and hunting. The fishing was excellent, and the party caught all the fish they could use, and had all the sport they wanted. The hunting was also good, and the party killed a number of deer, which furnished them with fresh meat. The party returned to Ottawa in wagons, and took the cars for Chicago. The trip was a most enjoyable one, and the party is already talking of another trip next year.

Of all conceptions of the three are a large number of educational men. Chicago being a commercial city has but few of the literary professions, but the majority of those who have particular inclination to literature, art, or science, or of engineering, are employed by it to further an enjoyment of other pursuits. It is therefore a common thing to find professional men of all kinds in business, and business men of all kinds in professional pursuits. Of the latter class there is a large number who have been educated for the professions, but who have found that they could not make a living at them, and have therefore taken up with other pursuits. Of the former class there are a number who have been educated for business, but who have found that they could not make a living at it, and have therefore taken up with other pursuits. HOW ORIENTAL EXPLOSIVE SO WORKED ON TWO CONVICTIONISTS.

The old Gentleman Knew the Opinion of Judicial Mind Often Depends upon the Point of It. Sometimes Suggestion—What Judges Could Do Without Lawyers—Also, Whether Justice Is Among Them—Learning the Law for Love to the Excuse Old Time.

"I was sitting in the office of Judge Blank, in Casa Grande, one morning last winter," said Mr. Bullion, "when a young man entered and began addressing me as if I were the judge. I was about to explain my mistake, when I noticed that the judge was sitting at his desk, with his head resting on his hand, apparently asleep. I thought it would be a good joke to let the young man go on, and see how long it would be before he discovered his error, so I said nothing. He began by telling me that he had been admitted to the bar of the Territory of Arizona, and had come to Casa Grande to practice his profession. He said that he had been reading law in the office of Judge Blank, and that the judge had told him that he was competent to be admitted to the bar, and that he had come to Casa Grande because he thought it would be a good place to begin practice. He said that he had a good deal of confidence in himself, and that he thought he could succeed. He then asked me if I knew of any way in which he could get a start. I told him that I thought he could get a start by getting out of the office and letting me alone, and he left the room.

"Shortly afterward Judge Blank awoke, and I explained to him what had occurred. He said that he had been asleep, and that he thought the young man would be back. He was right. The young man returned in a few minutes, and said that he had forgotten to mention that he had a letter of introduction to the judge from a prominent lawyer in Illinois, and that he would like to present it. He then handed me a letter, which I opened and read. It was a request from the lawyer to whom it was addressed that the judge would do what he could to help the young man, who was a friend of the writer. I handed the letter to the judge, who read it, and then said to the young man:

"'Have you ever practiced law?'

"'No, sir,' he said, 'but I have been a student in your office for two years, and I think I am competent to do so.'

"'Have you ever been in a court room?' asked the judge.

"'No, sir,' he said, 'but I have been in the habit of reading the reports, and I think I understand the practice.'

"'Have you ever been in a police court?' asked the judge.
